

You are a blue jay.

Once infected, you live long enough to go on to the next round.

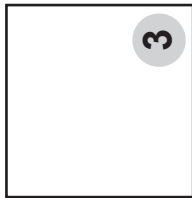

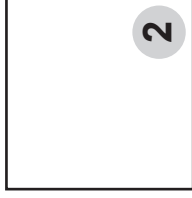

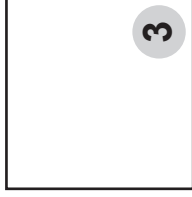

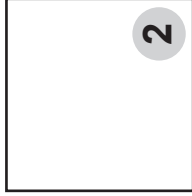

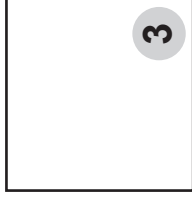

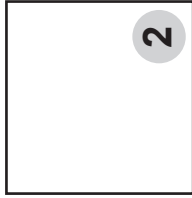

Then you die.

You are a robin.

When bitten by an infected mosquito, you do not get sick or die.

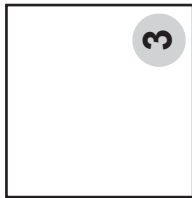

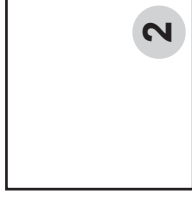

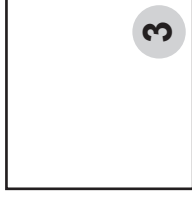

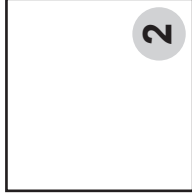

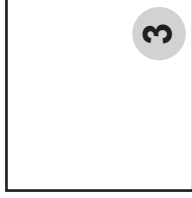

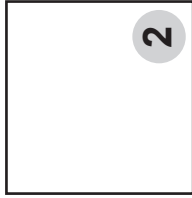

Congratulations, you live!

You are a crow.

Once infected, you live long enough to go on to the next round.

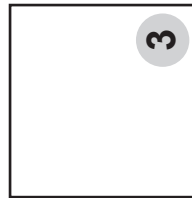

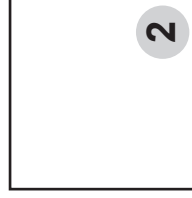

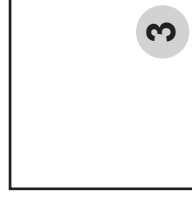

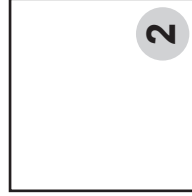

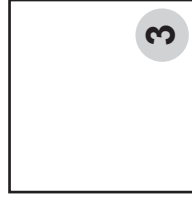

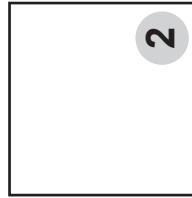

Then you die.

You are a human.

When bitten by an infected mosquito, you do not transmit the virus.

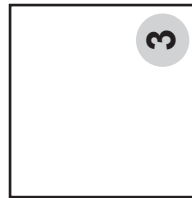

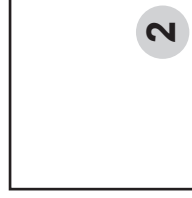

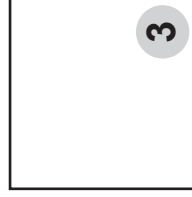

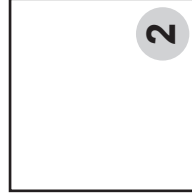

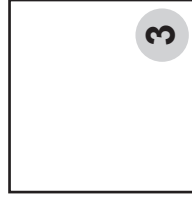

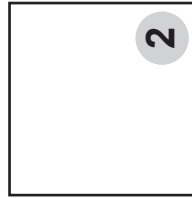

You may get sick, but you do not die.

You are a horse.

When bitten by an infected mosquito, you do not transmit the virus and live long enough to go on to the last round.

Then you die.

You are a blue jay.

When bitten by an infected mosquito, you fight off the infection and do not get sick.

Congratulations, you live!
